

The effect of smoothing is to that values which return straight 0.0 because of one conditional probability being 0.0 now return a reasonable (definitely non-0) value. This has the unfavorable side-effect of skewing other values where this was not the case, though.